The creator of much of the artist's portfolio is a reproduction of the artist's traditional technique. She follows the tradition of the Temple of the Moon by jumping up layers of paint and glaze. The creation was not done until the Japanese moved into the region in 1990s.

Prehistoric Art

Cave of Lascaux, France

Discovered by four boys in 1940.

Caves are filled with pictographs
and petroglyphs of hundreds of animals.

There are almost 600 pictures of animals, mostly horses.

Other animals painted are stags, bulls, bison, and ibex.

Only one man is painted.

The Jungle Paintings: Henri Rousseau

- Henri Rousseau (1844-1910) never visited the tropics or saw a jungle in real life, anymore than he studied the wild animals he painted in their natural habitat. Rousseau's jungle paintings were the fantasies of a city dweller, constructed from visits to the Botanical Gardens in Paris, from books and from his vivid imagination.
- Nevertheless they have struck a chord with succeeding generations of viewers, offering a dream of escape from banal reality to an exotic and savage realm.

Jungle with Lion

- Like Rousseau, we are going to take inspiration from tropical forests and animals to make patterns.

Animals in Sculpture

HCB- (2010-11)

Lidded Incense burner (Koro) in the form of a tripod vase on a tree root with attached Peacock and Peahen (1877).

This is a magnificent example of Japanese bronze casting. First Exhibited at the 1878 Universal Exposition.

August Rodin- Le Lion qui Pleure- 1881

Pablo Picasso- She Goat ,Vallauris 1950. Picasso got the idea and then, according to Françoise Gilot, he looked for items of junk that could serve as parts of the goat's anatomy.

Swiss Artist Alberto Giacometti- Dog, 1951- Bronze cast sculpture

David Smith- Big Rooster- 1945

Sally Matthews- Wolf 2001- Sculpture part of Permanent Public sculptures in Goodwood Sculpture Park

Sally Matthews- Gnu- 2001

Deborah Butterfield- Horse in the Park, Habitat 2004-5

Exhibited at this Year's Summer Exhibition at the Royal Academy, David Mach created Silver Streak 2010

These are two more of Mach's creations using found objects such as coat hangers. The Gorilla on the right has been made from match stick heads!!! Time consuming yet highly innovative.

French sculptor Edouard Martinet makes amazingly life-like animal sculptures from metal objects found in junk yards

American sculptor Sayaka Ganz doesn't look at garbage bins and spatulas like everyone else does; she sees art in everyday objects, turning a set of spoons into colourful fish.
