

Animals in Sculpture

HCB (2010-11)

Lidded Incense burner (Koro) in the form of a tripod vase on a tree root with attached Peacock and Peahen (1877).

This is a magnificent example of Japanese bronze casting. First Exhibited at the 1878 Universal Exposition.

August Rodin- Le Lion qui Pleure- 1881

Pablo Picasso- She Goat ,Vallauris 1950. Picasso got the idea and then, according to Francoise Gilot, he looked for items of junk that could serve as parts of the goat's anatomy.

Swiss Artist Alberto Giacometti- Dog, 1951- Bronze cast sculpture

David Smith- Big Rooster- 1945

Sally Matthews- Wolf 2001- Sculpture part of Permanent Public sculptures in Goodwood Sculpture Park

Sally Matthews- Gnu- 2001

Deborah Butterfield- Horse in the Park, Habitat 2004-5

Exhibited at this Year's Summer Exhibition at the Royal Academy, David Mach created Silver Streak 2010

These are two more of Mach's creations using found objects such as coat hangers. The Gorilla on the right has been made from match stick heads!!! Time consuming yet highly innovative.

French sculptor Edouard Martinet makes amazingly life-like animal sculptures from metal objects found in junk yards

American sculptor Sayaka Ganz doesn't look at garbage bins and spatulas like everyone else does; she sees art in everyday objects, turning a set of spoons into colourful fish.
