Parachute Pavilion, Coney Island,
New York

Architectural model

36x21x34cm

The architectural model represents a competition-winning idea to design a pavilion beside the world famous Parachute Ride Tower on Coney Island's Rieglemann Boardwalk. The design is inspired by the physical, historical and cultural context of Coney Island. Appearing to float above the boardwalk, the pavilion is percolated with large windows looking out to the ocean, the city of New York and skyward towards the crown of the adjacent Parachute Ride tower

Print

119x84cm

The main goal of the three students behind this studio project was to incorporate design, function, construction and sustainability. The result is an effective stadium, adaptable for either 6000 or 20000 spectators, with a lifespan that will continue after the Olympic Games.

Prismatic Tower
Digital Drawings on Paper
80x54cm

The project was predominantly driven by the complexity of designing the exterior glass facade. The aim is to blend technology and the aesthetics of the structure. As the sun and light moves around the tower, its appearance changes and lightens.

Fred Schley
Notting Hill
Oil
60x69.5cm

The artist was drawn by the sunlight as it appeared to reveal the mysteries hidden within the building - what it keeps secret and what it reveals. Schley is impressed by how so-called 'lifeless' objects can appear to have personalities and be completely autonomous.

Renny Tait

Roman Church 2006

Oil on canvas

61x91cm

The artist reduces forms to their bare essentials, flattening the picture plane and emphasizing the verticals and horizontals. The edges of the canvas are accentuated creating a powerful sense of order and harmony. Conscious of the tradition of painting, Tait looks to the Old Masters for inspiration.
