Room 29, February 20 - March 1

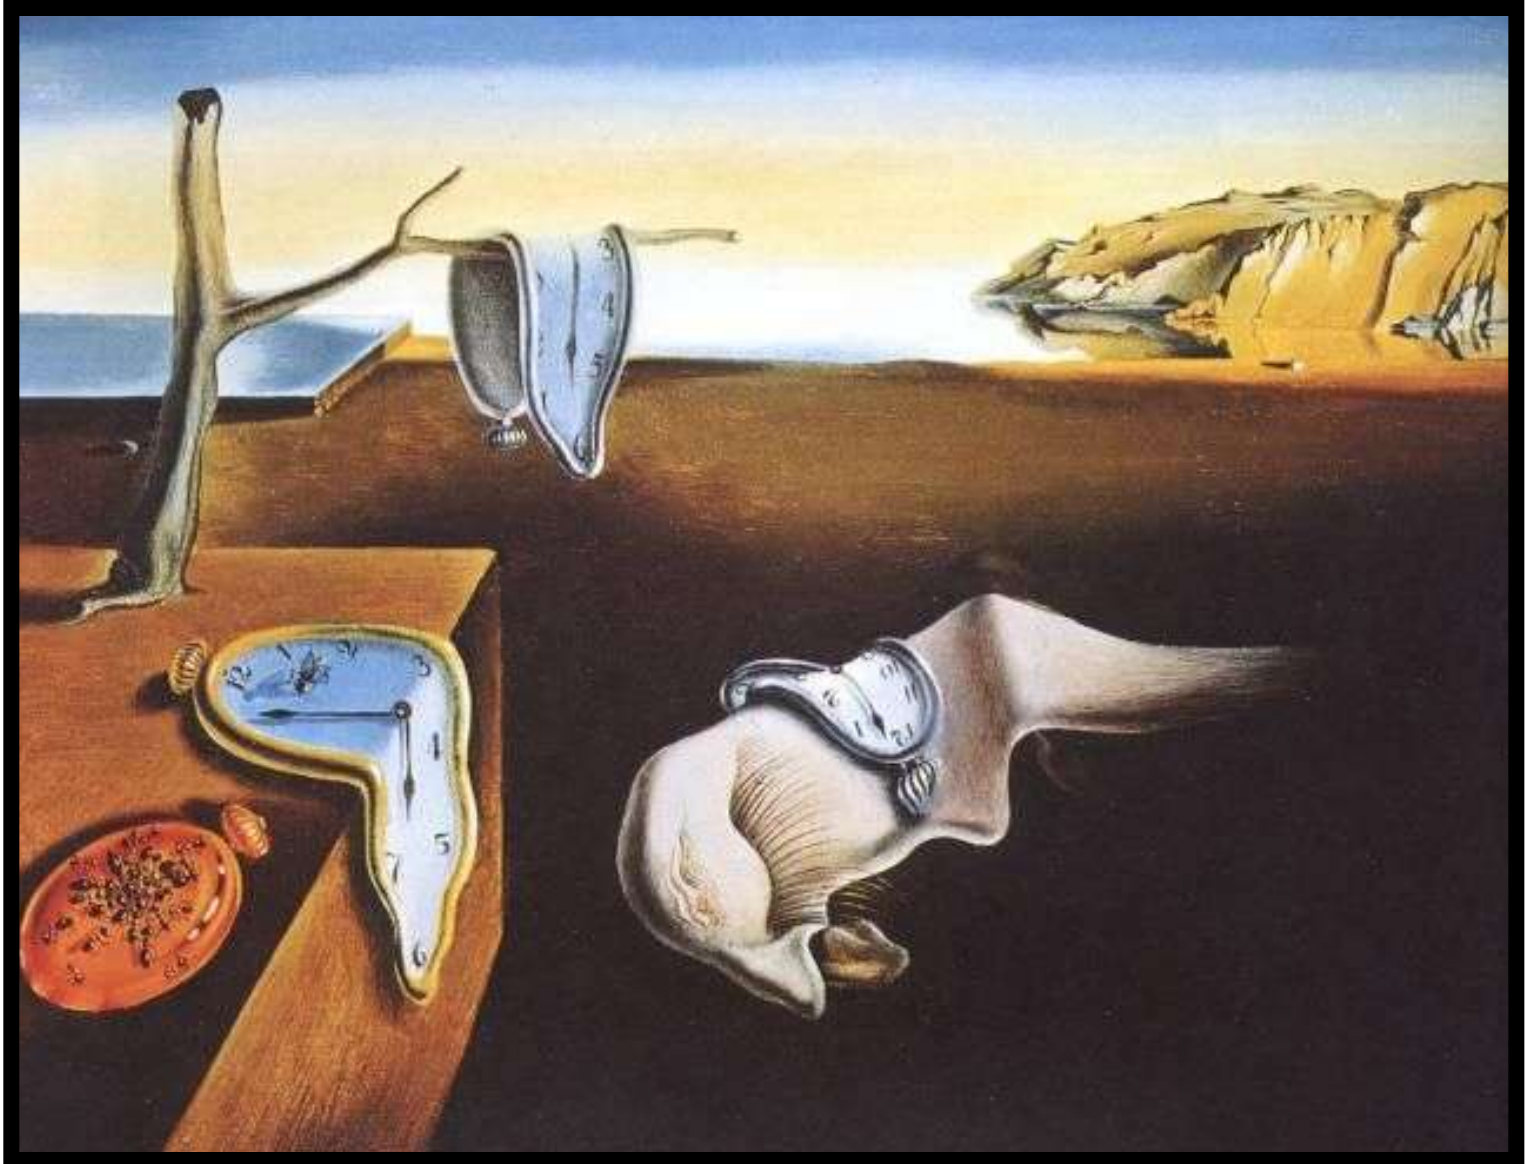

Saturday, February 20, 1981 a.m.
Egmont-Room 29. The room feels like I've slept in. On the table, some leftovers on a plate, two gloves, a bottle of water, some Chase cigarettes left in the ashtray. It seems to me at first that the room has been cleaned.
Then I notice a pair of women's shoes sticking out from under the wardrobe and a white cup with a strong label hanging on the counter by the bathroom, as well as elsewhere: a new, red cup still in its wrapping, the coffee, yellow, in a blue plastic cup, Italian toothpaste, a big white towel. Nothing else. I open the wardrobe. Inside I find a large colored sweater, a handbag, a small suitcase, a plastic bag containing two pairs of slippers (size 36 and 41), two cotton socks, and lying on the surface a small bookcase notebook with the inscription: "Ricordo matematico" (reading, uncertain). That thought is very mixed C-S, born in Pisa in 1918, and F.C. born in Pisa in 1957, were married on February 20, 1981, at eleven o'clock in Casalecchio. My first couple on a honeymoon. In the handbag I find some cosmetics and a white hairbrush (for the small mirror), a long white shirt, a pair of white pajamas, a white and red striped slip, a pair of black socks. I clean the room, under the bed. I throw the slippers. I find three pajamas, a white pair with small red and blue flowers, the other in blue stripes, and a long black hat.

Sunday, March 1, 9:30 a.m. They have gone. I clean up the room.
